As #BlackWomen, girls, and gender-expansive people, our lived experiences must shape the policies that address our needs.

Our 2023 Black Reproductive Justice Agenda is a collaboration between @In Our Own Voice and 50+ other Black women-led reproductive justice organizations and advocates. We've partnered to produce proactive, long-term policy solutions to address the social, economic, political, and health issues that impact our decisions on if, when, and how to have and raise families on our own terms.

In releasing this agenda, our hope is that the U.S. Congress will embrace these recommendations and work with us in partnership to make the necessary legislative changes so that we can live in full autonomy and achieve full economic, political, and cultural freedom.

To create lasting change, policymakers must #HearOurVoices.

We dropped our 2023 Black Reproductive Justice Policy Agenda in collaboration with @BlackWomensRJ and 30+ other Black women organizations. Too often our voices are not centered in conversations surrounding policy that affects our bodies, and we're hereto change that. Read our full agenda and our human rights-centered recommendations at the link in our bio.

If we don't tell our stories, who will?

As #BlackWomen, girls, and gender-expansive people, we must ensure that our voices are centered in policy conversations. Our 2023 Black Reproductive Justice Policy Agenda dropped last week, and it's grounded in the fact that we should be able to decide if, when, and how we have a family; and on our own terms.
