

CONTENTS

- 03 Introduction
- 06 Key findings
- 19 Detailed findings

Introduction.

Black voters continue to play a decisive role in shaping election outcomes, yet surveys that center their experiences remain rare, especially at the state level.

For several years, In Our Own Voice: National Black Women's Reproductive Justice Agenda has invested in rigorous research to better understand the views, needs, and priorities of Black adults across the country.

In 2017, during the early days of the first Trump administration, we explored attitudes among Black adults related to race, policy, and reproductive justice.

After the 2020 election, but just before President Biden took office, we returned to the field to understand how Black communities were experiencing and responding to the policy landscape.

Leading up to the 2022 midterm elections, we conducted national and state surveys among Black women voters to understand their values, policy concerns, and responses to dominant issues in the news, such as the overturning of Roe v. Wade.

In spring 2024, we surveyed Black women nationally and across nine states to understand their perspectives heading into another high-stakes presidential election year.

Now, several months into the second Trump administration, we're back in the field exploring how Black communities think and feel about the new policy environment. We set out to understand their daily lives, their struggles, and their expectations for American life under the Trump administration. We also delved into the kind of future they imagine for their families and the specific barriers they say are getting in the way.

The goal of this research is to offer insights for policymakers, journalists, advocates, and others seeking to understand Black communities' experiences, values, and priorities at this time.

This report provides findings from a statewide survey among n = 518 Black adults ages 18 and older in New Jersey. The survey was conducted May 27 through June 18, 2025. Ipsos administered the survey using a combination of their probability-based KnowledgePanel and off-panel, opt-in sample. The data are weighted to reflect a representative sample of Black adults in New Jersey. See the next page for a demographic profile of survey respondents.

This survey is part of a larger project that surveys Black adults in a total of ten states.

Here is the demographic composition of the survey respondents.

	Weighted %	Unweighted N
Total	100%	518
Black or African American	100%	518
2+ races	9%	34
Hispanic / Latina/o/x	10%	62
Women	54%	281
Men	46%	230
Non-binary / transgender	1%	9
Prefer to self- describe	0%	1
Prefer not to say	0%	1
18 to 29	20%	94
30 to 44	30%	167
45 to 64	31%	189
65+	19%	68

	Weighted %	Unweighted N
HS or less	40%	208
Some college	28%	160
College +	32%	150
Less than $25K	17%	158
$25K to $50K	11%	110
$50K to $75K	18%	92
$75K+	54%	158
Democrats	55%	300
Independents	37%	168
Republicans	9%	50
Metro	99%	513
Non-metro	0%	0
Not available	1%	5

Key findings.

Here are 10 key findings.

1

Data suggest nearly half of Black adults in New Jersey are struggling with economic insecurity.

Forty-six percent say they have less than $500 in savings, and 44% say they don't have enough money to pay for basic needs like food and housing. Economic stress is a near daily reality—54% report worrying about their financial situation every day or several times a week.

The burden is heavier for women of reproductive age. A majority (57%) of women 18 to 44 can't afford basic needs right now (vs. 44% overall).

How often do you worry about...

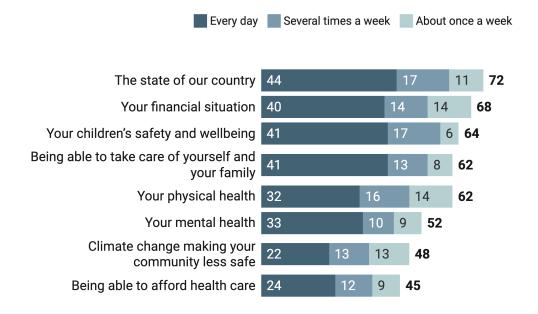

RANDOMIZE

2

There's a lot of worry.

Majorities of respondents worry at least once a week about various aspects of their families' physical and financial wellbeing, as well as the state of the country.

Two-thirds (68%) say they worry "every day" about at least one of these issues.

Black adults expect things to get a lot worse under the Trump administration. Respondents expect things to get worse on some of the issues they already worry about most—such as economic security. They also think racial injustice, threats to democracy, and access to reproductive care will worsen over the next four years.

Pessimism crosses gender, age, and other demographic lines. That said, women and older Black adults are most likely to anticipate harmful outcomes of the Trump administration.

See next page.

EXPECTATIONS FOR THE NEXT FOUR YEARS UNDER THE TRUMP ADMINISTRATION

Do you think...

The cost of living will go up	78 13	The cost of living will go down
It'll get harder to get quality reproductive health care	70 11	It'll get easier to get quality reproductive health care
There will be more racial discrimination	69 12	There will be less racial discrimination
Fewer students will learn about Black history	64 13	More students will learn about Black history
It will get harder for Black people to stand up for their civil rights	63 12	It will get easier for Black people to stand up for their civil rights
Black people will lose rights	63 11	Black people will gain rights
I will feel less safe, secure, and free	63 17	I will feel more safe, secure, and free
There will be fewer Black people in positions of power	62 13	There will be more Black people in positions of power
We'll lose our democracy	57 39	Our country will stay a democracy
Trump's policies will negatively affect Black people	56 13	Trump's policies will positively affect Black people
Your income will go down	33 29	Your income will go up

Medicaid cuts may disproportionately impact Black adults. Six in ten respondents (60%) say they or a family member has had Medicaid coverage at some point in their lives. For many Black adults in New Jersey, it's a vital resource. Nearly all who've received Medicaid (96%) say it's been important to them or their families, including 72% who say it's been "very important." Yet access remains a challenge for some—33% report having had trouble finding a provider who accepts Medicaid.

There's a gap between the desire to have children and the intention to do so.

Two-thirds of respondents ages 18 to 44 (65%) say, ideally, they'd want (more) kids in the future. However, just half (48%) plan to do so.

Interestingly, men are more likely than women to both want children (72% vs. 58%) and plan to have them (53% vs. 41%).

We explored what might be holding back those who want kids. Topping the list is "being able to take care of myself or my family as it is now," costs of housing and food, and the state of our country.

TOP DECISION FACTORS FOR WHETHER OR NOT TO HAVE A CHILD

- Being able to take care of myself or my family as it is now (72% of 18- to 44-year-olds say this is part of their thinking about whether or not to have a child)
- Housing prices (72%)
- Food prices (70%)
- The state of our country right now (69%)
- How much money I or my partner makes (65%)
- Health care prices (65%)
- Childcare prices (64%)
- The state of my mental health (60%)
- Racism (56%)
- The risk of death if I or my loved one gets pregnant (47%)

Systemic racism is a barrier to health, stability, and raising healthy families.

Black adults in New Jersey view systemic racism as a force shaping daily life and access to opportunity.

Six in ten (61%) say society's systems are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people (vs. 31% who say systems are set up for equality).

Six in ten respondents (61%) report exposure to environmental toxins, such as unsafe water and air, at some point in their lives.

Addressing systemic racism is seen as essential for helping Black families thrive. A large majority of respondents (85%) say dismantling systemic racism is extremely or very important to building a future where Black families are healthy, safe, free, and financially secure.

Women of reproductive age face significant barriers to reproductive justice.

Throughout the data, we find that women ages 18 to 44 have the least security, freedom, and opportunity to raise healthy children if they choose. Men also face barriers, but not as many or to the same degree.

The next page summarizes these obstacles. All percentages reflect Black women respondents ages 18 to 44.

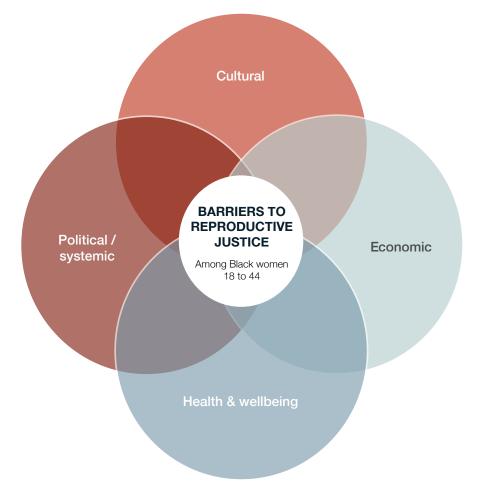

Majorities recognize an adultification (74%) and sexualization (68%) of Black girls in society 72% say it's very important for Black women to be visible in media and culture 75% say representation affects how they are treated 67% expect Black people to lose positions of power during the next four years

68% think they'll feel less safe, secure, and free under President Trump

In the next four years, majorities think:

- Black women will lose rights (73%)
- Racial discrimination will increase (76%)
- Fewer students will learn Black history (72%)
- It'll be harder for Black people to stand up for their civil rights (65%)
- We'll lose our democracy (74%)

66% say systems in US are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people

67% worry at least once a week about their mental health
77% think it'll get harder to get quality repro care under the Trump administration
48% say their risk of death in pregnancy is a decision factor for having kids
43% say possible criminalization is a decision factor for having kids
47% have relied on Medicaid at some point
33% have felt a health care provider(s) didn't take their concerns seriously
72% have experienced unhealthy water, air, or environmental toxins

A majority (57%) don't have enough money to pay for basic needs like food and housing

62% have less than $500 in savings

82% worry about their financial situation at least once a week

84% expect the cost of living to increase in the next four years and they expect their own income will go down (40%) or stay stagnant (29%)

58% want (more) children, but just 41% plan to have them

Top decision factors in whether to have a child:

- Being able to care for self / family as is (75%)
- Housing prices (72%)
- Food prices (72%)
- Childcare prices (71%) RANK ORDER
- Salary / wages (67%)
- Health care prices (66%)

Black adults see many policy solutions that could help them thrive.

When asked what it would take for Black families to thrive, respondents point to a wide range of policy priorities—but especially economic concerns and dismantling systemic barriers.

TOP POLICY NEEDS

Let's say we wanted to create a world where Black people are free to raise healthy children, if they choose. In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

- Making sure everyone has access to clean water (70% extremely important)
- Increasing job opportunities that pay a livable wage (68%)
- Improving access to quality, affordable health care (67%)
- Having equal opportunities to move up in the workplace (67%)
- Improving access to quality public schools (67%)
- Increasing affordable housing (66%)
- Dismantling systemic racism (65%)
- Improving Black maternal health (63%)
- Improving access to healthy and affordable food options (63%)
- Getting rid of racial disparities in health care (63%)
- Increasing support for women who face intimate partner violence / sexual violence (63%)
- Having equal pay in the workplace (63%)

Large majorities support abortion rights, access, and personal decisions.

Majorities across demographic groups support abortion rights and access, including those who attend religious services regularly.

One-third (34%) of respondents ages 18 to 44 say they know someone who has had an abortion in the past year or two.

72%

Say abortion should be legal in all or most cases

Including 61% of those who attend religious services regularly

79%

Say the person(s) involved should decide when and how someone can get abortion care

74%

84%

Agree: Each woman should have the right to make her own decision on abortion, even if I may disagree with her decision

83%

82%

Agree: When it comes to abortion, I trust Black women to make the personal decision that's best for themselves

79%

Representation of Black women matters.

Nine in ten (91%) respondents say it's important that Black women are visible and positively portrayed in our culture and media. Why does it matter? For many reasons, but particularly because representation shapes how Black people are treated.

Why does having Black women voices in culture and media matter to you? Select any that apply.

RANDOMIZE UP TO DOESN'T MATTER

	Total	Women
Representation shapes how we're treated		68
Black women push for justice		57
Black women tell stories others ignore		57
It helps me feel seen		46
It doesn't matter to me	9	4

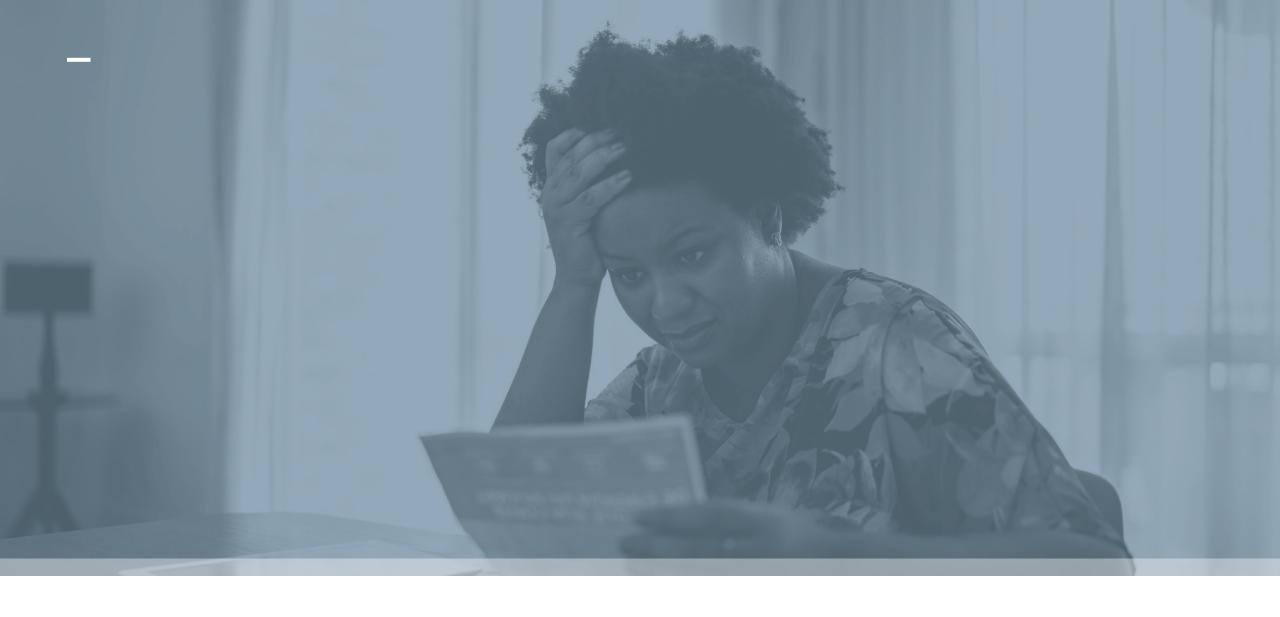

Detailed findings.

SECTIONS

- 21 Daily economic and emotional pressures
- Outlook on life during the second Trump term
- 40 Needs and aspirations for healthy families
- 52 Views on reproductive health policies
- Respect, representation, and changing norms

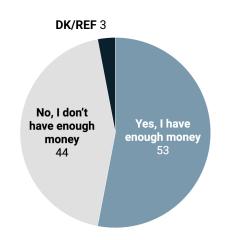

Daily economic and emotional pressures

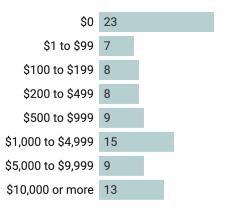

Many respondents are struggling with little to no economic security.

More than four in ten (44%) say they don't have enough money to cover basic needs, and close to half (46%) have less than $500 available for an emergency expense.

Do you have enough money to pay for all of your bills and basic needs, like food and housing?

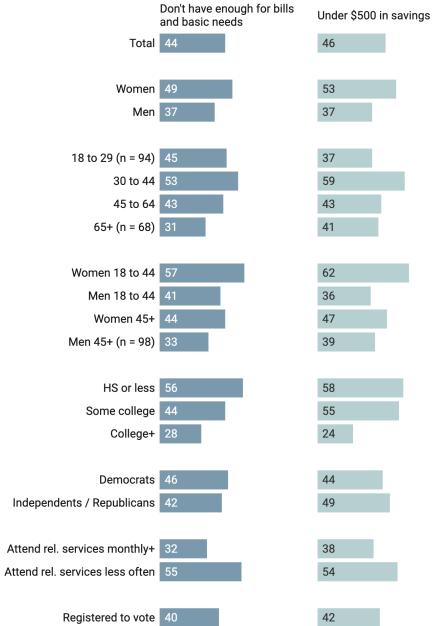

How much money do you have set aside that could be used for an emergency?

Women—particularly those ages 18 to 44—and adults without a four-year degree are most likely to be financially insecure.

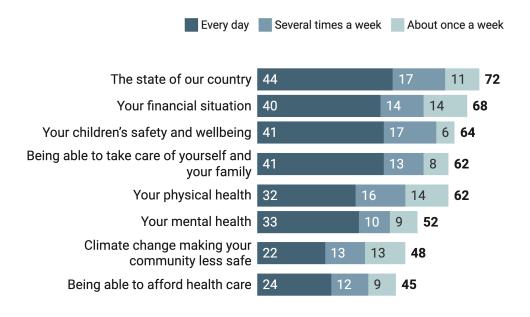

There are many worries on people's minds—including the state of the country.

Majorities worry at least once a week about the state of our country, their families' financial and physical wellbeing, and their own mental health.

How often do you worry about...

RANDOMIZE

How often do you worry about...

RANDOMIZE

% Weekly or more

Adults 18 to 44 worry more than older adults about finances and caring for themselves and their family.

See at right and the next page.

	The state of our country	Your financial situation	Your children's safety and wellbeing	Being able to take care of yourself and your family
Total	72	68	64	62
Women	73	67	65	62
Men	71	68	62	63
18 to 29 (n = 94)	67	78	57	70
30 to 44	76	78	69	74
45 to 64	77	71	72	67
65+ (n = 68)	63	37	48	29
			·
Women 18 to 44	78	82	61	73
Men 18 to 44	66	73	67	71
Women 45+	69	55	67	53
Men 45+ (n = 98)	76	63	57	54

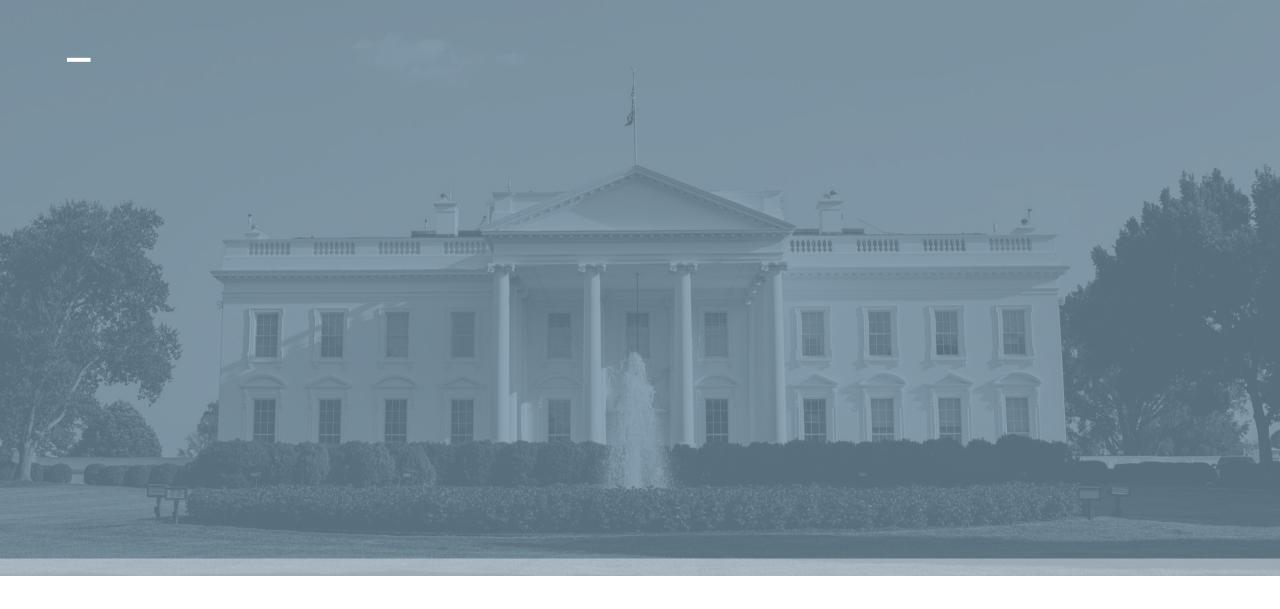

Younger respondents are also more likely than their older counterparts to worry about their mental health, climate change, and health care costs.

How often do you worry about... RANDOMIZE

% Weekly or more

	Your physical health	Your mental health	Climate change making your community less safe	Being able to afford health care
Total	62	53	48	44
Women	59	51	46	43
Men	64	53	50	46
18 to 29 (n = 94)	62	71	54	50
30 to 44	68	66	53	50
45 to 64	66	47	43	49
65+ (n = 68)	46	22	39	22
Women 18 to 44	62	67	46	47
Men 18 to 44	68	68	62	55
Women 45+	60	39	44	40
Men 45+ (n = 98)	60	36	36	37

Outlook on life during the second Trump term

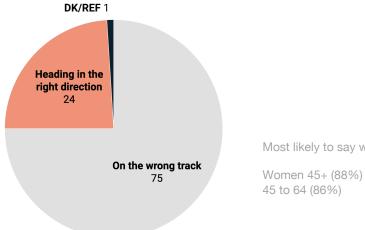

Would you say things in the country are:

Eight months into the Trump administration, three in four respondents (75%) say the country is on the wrong track.

Majorities across demographic groups say the country is on the wrong track, with older women most likely to express this view.

Most likely to say right direction Men 18 to 44 (41%) Ages 18 to 29 (41%)

Most likely to say wrong track

45 to 64 (86%)

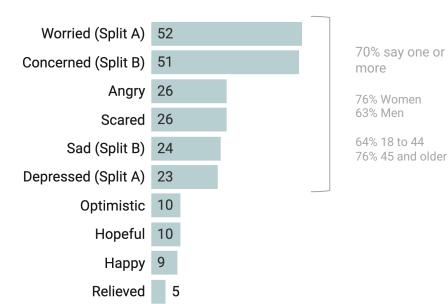

Most respondents (70%) feel negatively about Trump winning the election.

Just one in four (24%) respondents express a positive sentiment about the election outcome.

How do you feel about Donald Trump winning the election?

RANDOMIZE UP TO NONE

None of these 9

More than half (56%) expect Trump's policies to negatively affect Black people.

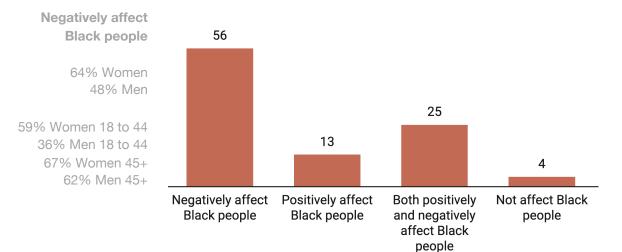

Just one in eight respondents (13%) think Trump's policies will positively affect Black people, including just 18% of Black men.

Women and older men are most likely to foresee singularly negative effects on Black communities.

About six in ten men ages 18 to 44 think Trump's policies will have positive effects (22%), both negative and positive effects (36%), or will not affect Black people (6%).

In general, do you think President Trump's policies will:

ROTATE FIRST TWO

More than six in ten (63%) expect to feel less safe, secure, and free under a Trump administration.

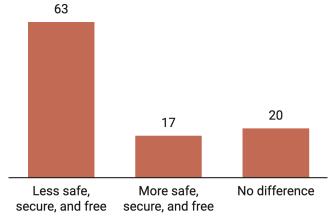

Women are more likely than men to expect greater insecurity under President Trump (71% v. 53%).

Fewer than half of men ages 18 to 44 think they'll feel less security (44%), with the rest thinking they'll feel more security (32%) or they won't feel a difference (25%).

Think about the next four years under President Trump. Do you think you will feel:

ROTATE FIRST TWO

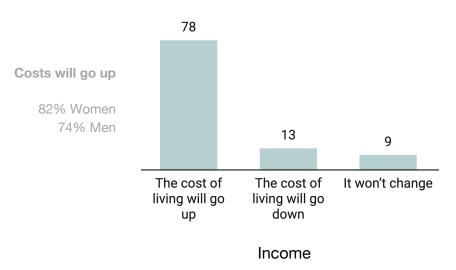

Most (78%) expect the cost of living to rise over the next four years, without an increase in their own incomes.

In fact, a third (33%) expect their incomes to go down during the next four years.

In the next four years under President Trump, do you think:

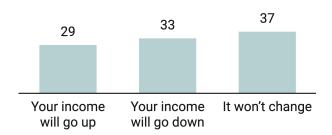

RANDOMIZE PAIRS AND ROTATE WITHIN PAIR

Cost of living

Income will go up

25% Women 34% Men

Majorities also foresee backward trends across health care, civil rights, and democracy.

In the next four years under President Trump, do you think: RANDOMIZE PAIRS AND ROTATE ITEMS WITHIN PAIR

				won t change
It'll get harder to get quality reproductive health care	70	11	It'll get easier to get quality reproductive health care	18
There will be more racial discrimination	69	12	There will be less racial discrimination	19
Fewer students will learn about Black history	64	13	More students will learn about Black history	22
It will get harder for Black people to stand up for their civil rights	63	12	It will get easier for Black people to stand up for their civil rights	23
There will be fewer Black people in positions of power	62	13	There will be more Black people in positions of power	24
We'll lose our democracy	57	39	Our country will stay a democracy	N/A

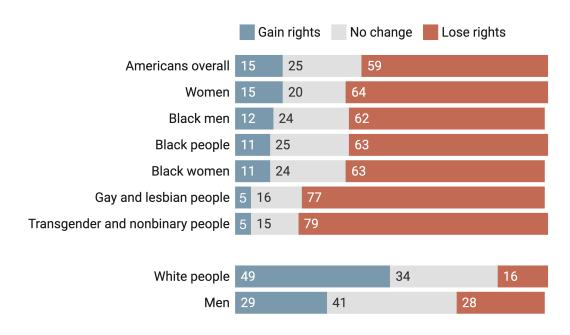

Won't change

Black adults think many people, including themselves, will lose rights under President Trump.

They see men and white people as likely to keep or gain rights under President Trump.

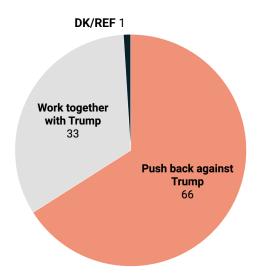

Under President Trump, do you think these people will gain or lose rights?

Two-thirds (66%) say they'd want their elected officials to push back against President Trump. In general, do you want your elected officials in Congress to:

ROTATE

Many Black families in New Jersey see Medicaid as a vital resource.

The program isn't perfect—one in three (33%) say they or a loved one has had trouble finding a provider who accepts Medicaid.

60%

Say they or a family member has had Medicaid coverage at some point in their lives (33% self; 40% family member) 96%

Of those with a connection to Medicaid say the program has been important to them or their loved ones—72% say it has been "very important"

Among n = 350 respondents who say they or a family member has had Medicaid 33%

Say they or a family member has had trouble finding a health care provider that takes Medicaid

Among n = 350 respondents who say they or a family member has had Medicaid

Three in ten (30%) say they've worried about themselves or a family member being deported unlawfully.

About half (48%) of respondents ages 18 to 29 say they've worried about deportation.

As you may know, the Trump administration is deporting undocumented immigrants.

Have you worried that you or a family member might be deported unlawfully?

30%

67%

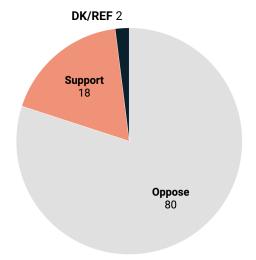

Yes, I've worried about this

No, I haven't worried about this

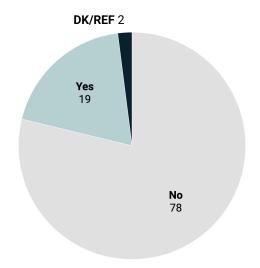

A majority (80%) opposes Trump's pardons of people convicted of January 6th crimes. As you may know, President Trump pardoned people convicted of crimes related to the Capitol riot on January 6th.

Do you support or oppose Trump's pardons?

Most (78%) don't think President Trump would handle Black-led protests fairly. Do you think President Trump would handle Black-led protests fairly?

Needs and aspirations for healthy families

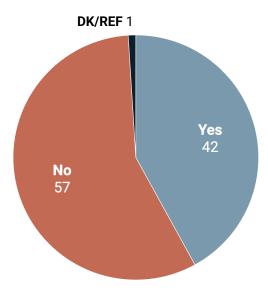

Do Black adults in New Jersey have the security, safety, and freedom required to raise healthy families if they choose?

Fewer than half say yes (42%).

Imagine this. You have enough money to pay bills, with plenty left over. You and your family are able to be physically and mentally healthy. You feel safe in your community. You have the freedom to raise healthy families, if you choose to. You feel safe, secure, and free wherever you go.

Do you have a life like this now?

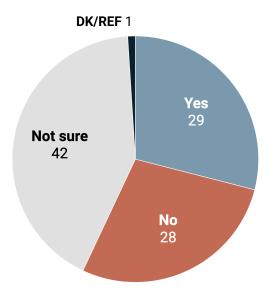

Just three in ten (29%) are convinced their children will have a life like this.

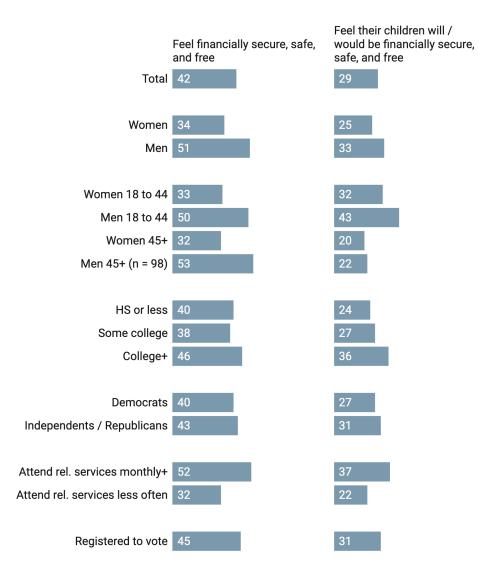

Respondents aren't necessarily pessimistic, however. A plurality (42%) are not sure.

Do you think your children will have a life like this? IF NO KIDS: If you were to have children, do you think they'd have a life like this?

Women are the least likely to feel financially secure, safe, and free.

There's a big gap between wanting children and planning to have them.

In an ideal world, 65% of respondents of reproductive age (18 to 44) say they'd want children in the future. But fewer than half (48%) plan to have them.

Men are more likely than women to both want children and plan to have them.

In an ideal world, would you want to have [any / any more] children in the future?

Do you plan to have [any / any more] children in the future?

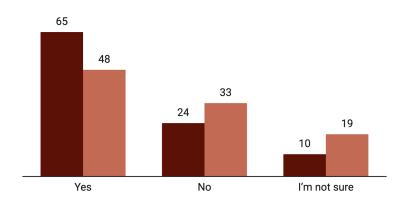

Among n = 261 respondents ages 18 to 44

Plan to have kids 41% Women 18 to 44 53% Men 18 to 44

Data suggest there are many barriers holding back people who want kids.

At the top of the list is simply "being able to care for myself or my family as it is now." Economic barriers and "the state of our country right now" are also considerations for a majority of respondents of reproductive age.

Are any of these things part of your thinking about whether or not to have a child?

RANDOMIZE | Among n = 261 respondents ages 18 to 44

% Yes, part of my thinking

Being able to care for myself or my family as it is now	72
Housing prices	72
Food prices	70
The state of our country right now	69
How much money I or my partner makes	65
Health care prices	65
Childcare prices	64
The state of my mental health	60
Racism	56
The risk of death if I or my loved one gets pregnant	47
Climate change / the environment	47
Being able to get health care if you had a miscarriage	46
Being charged with a crime for having a miscarriage or being suspected of ending a pregnancy	40
Abortion bans	35

% Yes, part of my thinking

Ages 18 to 44

Data show that 18- to 29-year-olds are balancing a broader set of considerations than their counterparts, including financial concerns, the state of the country, and their mental health.

Women are also weighing more factors than men—particularly those related to childcare, racism, abortion bans, and reproductive health.

Half (51%) of women ages 18 to 44 have considered being able to get health care if they were to experience a miscarriage, like due to abortion bans.

	Women	Men	18 to 29	30 to 44
Being able to care for myself or my family as it is now	75%	68%	85%	63%
Housing prices	72%	71%	79%	67%
Food prices	72%	66%	69%	70%
The state of our country right now	72%	66%	75%	65%
How much money I or my partner makes	67%	63%	72%	61%
Health care prices	66%	63%	69%	62%
Childcare prices	71%	57%	65%	64%
The state of my mental health	62%	58%	76%	50%
Racism	61%	51%	55%	58%
Climate change / the environment	48%	45%	49%	46%
The risk of death if I or my loved one gets pregnant	48%	44%	48%	45%
Being able to get health care if you had a miscarriage	51%	41%	51%	43%
Being charged with a crime for having a miscarriage or being suspected of ending a pregnancy	43%	35%	46%	36%
Abortion bans	40%	29%	32%	38%

What would it take to create a world where Black families are healthy, safe, free, and financially secure?

We asked respondents to imagine a world where Black people are safe, secure, and have the freedom to raise healthy children, if they choose (see text at right).

We then asked how important various policies are to achieving a world like this.

Respondents rate nearly every policy area as important to building a world where Black families thrive. See next page.

Presented to respondents

Imagine this. You have enough money to pay bills, with plenty left over. You and your family are able to be physically and mentally healthy. You feel safe in your community. You have the freedom to raise healthy families, if you choose to. You feel safe, secure, and free wherever you go...

Let's say we wanted to create a world like this. We want a world where Black people are free to raise healthy children, if they choose. In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

See next page....

In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

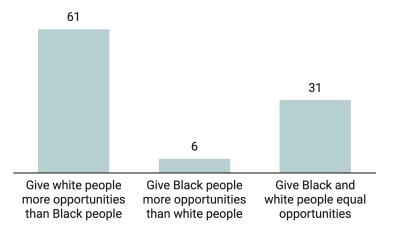

Clean water, economic opportunity, education and a more equitable society are among the most important.

	Extremely importa	nnt Ve	ry impo	ortant	t
Making sure everyone has access to clean water	70			18	8	88
Increasing job opportunities that pay a livable wage	68		2	0	8	88
Improving access to quality public schools	67		23	3		90
Improving access to quality, affordable health care	67		22	2		89
Having equal opportunities to move up in the workplace	67		21	I	8	88
Increasing affordable housing	66		19		85	5
Dismantling systemic racism	65		20		85	5
Improving access to healthy and affordable food options	63		26			89
Increasing support for women who face intimate partner violence / sexual violence	63		25		8	88
Having equal pay in the workplace	63		22		85	5
Decreasing the risk of drug and alcohol abuse in Black communities	63		23	23		6
Improving Black maternal health	63		24	24		37
Getting rid of racial disparities in health care	63		25		8	88
Improving access to affordable higher education	62		22		84
Protecting the right to vote in future elections, without barriers	61		26		8	37
Improving access to affordable mental health care	60		26		8	6
Having paid medical and family leave	60		28		8	88
Making sure neighborhoods have enough services like trash clean-up and sidewalks fixed and parks taken care of	58		29		8	37
Improving access to affordable child care	57		30		8	37
Getting rid of mass incarceration of Black people	49	32			81
Police reform	47	33		1	80
Improving access to affordable birth control	46	33		7	79
Improving access to affordable, legal abortion care	44	28		72
Getting rid of over policing in our communities	41	30		71
Getting more Black women elected to political office	41	31		72
Moving forward on equality for transgender people	33 23	5	66		V	IN

A majority of respondents (61%) say systems in the US—that are critical for raising healthy families—are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people.

Think about the systems in our society, such as school systems, health care, housing, food, banking, and the government.

In general, do you think these systems are set up to:

Many have experienced the results of these systems, such as a lack of clean water and air.

Six in ten (61%) have had at least one experience related to unhealthy water, air, or environmental toxins.

Have you ever:

% Yes

RANDOMIZE

entrate at the control of the first of the control of the
Felt the air in your neighborhood was unhealthy to breathe	37
to breatile
Had to boil water at home before drinking it	37
Had brown water come out of the taps in your
Had brown water come out of the taps in your home	36
Understanding of the transfer of the control of the
Had water come out of the taps in your home that smelled or tasted unsafe	28
Had to live in a neighborhood that was near toxic things, like chemicals or hazardous waste	16

Yes to any 61

Yes to any related to water 53

Additionally, three in ten (31%) say they've felt discrimination in the doctor's office.

Have you ever felt that a health care provider did not listen to you or take your concerns seriously because of your race?

31%

67%

Yes

No

32% Women 29% Men

Views on reproductive health policies

Seven in ten (72%) say abortion should be legal in all or most cases. Which comes closest to your view.

Abortion should be:

72%

26%

Legal in all or most cases

40% All cases 32% Most cases Illegal in all or most cases

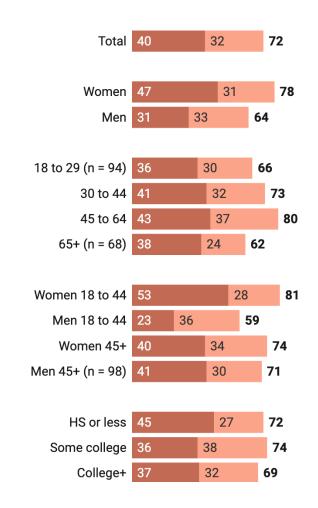

7% All cases 19% Most cases

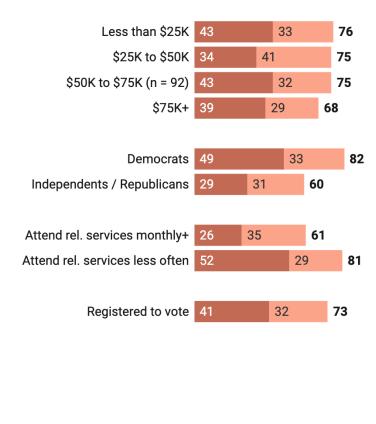

Which comes closest to your view: Abortion should be legal in all cases, legal in most cases, illegal in most cases, illegal in all cases

Legal in all cases Legal in most cases

Majorities across every demographic group think abortion should be legal in all or most cases — including those who attend religious services regularly.

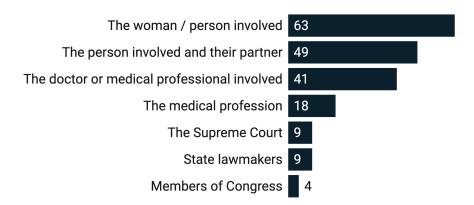

Black adults in New Jersey prefer that decisions about abortion rest in the hands of the people involved.

Just nine percent think state lawmakers should be making these decisions.

In your view, who should make decisions about when and how someone can get abortion care in your state? Select any that apply:

RANDOMIZE

Large majorities want people making their own decisions and agree that health insurance should cover the range of reproductive care.

84%

Agree: Each woman should have the right to make her own decision on abortion, even if I may disagree with her decision.

61% Strongly agree 24% Somewhat agree

> 88% Women 80% Men

81% 18 to 44 88% 45+ 82%

Agree: When it comes to abortion, I trust Black women to make the personal decision that's best for themselves.

57% Strongly agree 24% Somewhat agree

85% Women 77% Men

79% 18 to 44 85% 45+ 85%

Agree: Whether she has private or government funded health coverage, every woman should have coverage for the full range of pregnancy-related care, including prenatal care and abortion.

62% Strongly agree 22% Somewhat agree

> 88% Women 80% Men

83% 18 to 44 86% 45+

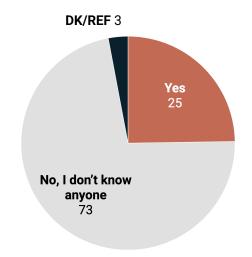

One in four (25%) say they know someone who has recently had an abortion.

A third (34%) of respondents ages 18 to 44 say they know someone who has had an abortion in the past year or two.

Do you know anyone who has had an abortion in the past year or two?

RANDOMIZE

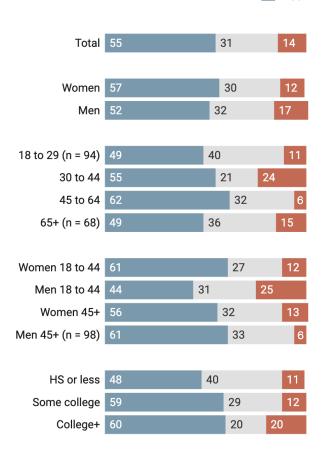

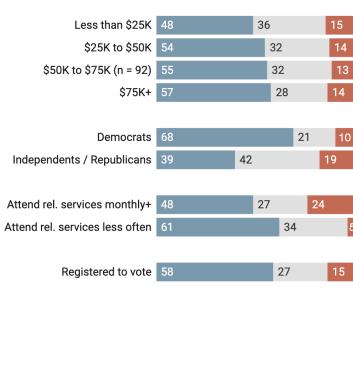

Are you more likely to vote for a candidate for state legislature who access to abortion:

Supports No difference / REF Is against

ROTATE SUPPORTS / IS AGAINST

Respondents are much more likely to vote for candidates who support abortion access than those who oppose it.

A large majority (86%) supports comprehensive sex education in high school.

Do you support or oppose comprehensive sex ed in high school that covers topics such as abstinence, birth control, abortion, preventing HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases, different sexual orientations, gender identity, sexual violence, consent, and healthy relationships?

86%

13%

Support

Oppose

81% Attends rel. services monthly+

Six in seven (84%) agree that health care providers should create space for conversations about sexuality, including sexual pleasure. Do you agree or disagree: Our health care providers should create space for education and non-judgmental conversations about sexuality, genderaffirming care, and sexual expression, including how we can experience pleasure.

84%

14%

Agree

Disagree

82% Attends rel. services monthly+

Respect, representation, and changing norms

Two-thirds of respondents recognize an adultification (65%) and sexualization (67%) of Black girls in our society.

Women are more likely than men to recognize these messages.

In a society that centers white people, there can be many false messages about Black people.

Do you think our society ____?

% Yes

65%

67%

Sees Black girls as more adult-like and less innocent than white girls

72% Women 57% Men

64% 18 to 44 67% 45+ Assumes more Black girls are sexually active than white girls

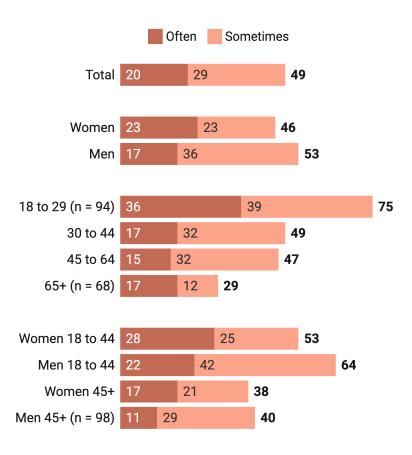

70% Women 63% Men

64% 18 to 44 70% 45+

Three-quarters (75%) of respondents ages 18 to 29 say they were told growing up that they look older for their age.

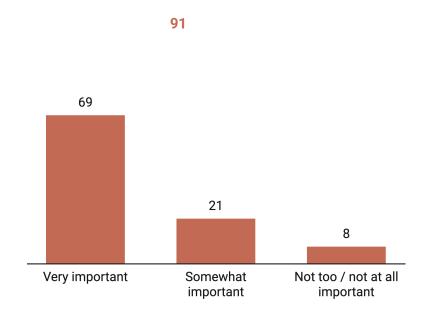

When you were growing up, how often were you told that you look older for your age?

Nearly all (91%) say it's important for Black women to be visible and positively portrayed in media.

How important is it that Black women are visible and positively portrayed in our culture and media (in entertainment, news, talk shows, etc.)?

Why is representation important?

Many reasons – but especially because it shapes how people are treated.

Why does having Black women voices in culture and media matter to you? Select any that apply. RANDOMIZE UP TO DOESN'T MATTER

	Total	Women
Representation shapes how we're treated		68
Black women push for justice		57
Black women tell stories others ignore		57
It helps me feel seer		46
It doesn't matter to me	9	4

