

The Lives and Voices of Black Adults in Pennsylvania

RESULTS FROM A SURVEY OF BLACK ADULTS IN PENNSYLVANIA

COMMISSIONED BY IN OUR OWN VOICE: NATIONAL BLACK WOMEN'S REPRODUCTIVE JUSTICE AGENDA

CONDUCTED BY PERRYUNDEM

SEPTEMBER 2025

voice
IN OUR OWN

CONTENTS

- 03 Introduction
- 06 Key findings
- 19 Detailed findings

Introduction.

Black voters continue to play a decisive role in shaping election outcomes, yet surveys that center their experiences remain rare, especially at the state level.

For several years, In Our Own Voice: National Black Women's Reproductive Justice Agenda has invested in rigorous research to better understand the views, needs, and priorities of Black adults across the country.

In 2017, during the early days of the first Trump administration, we explored attitudes among Black adults related to race, policy, and reproductive justice.

After the 2020 election, but just before President Biden took office, we returned to the field to understand how Black communities were experiencing and responding to the policy landscape.

Leading up to the 2022 midterm elections, we conducted national and state surveys among Black women voters to understand their values, policy concerns, and responses to dominant issues in the news, such as the overturning of Roe v. Wade.

In spring 2024, we surveyed Black women nationally and across nine states to understand their perspectives heading into another high-stakes presidential election year.

Now, several months into the second Trump administration, we're back in the field exploring how Black communities think and feel about the new policy environment. We set out to understand their daily lives, their struggles, and their expectations for American life under the Trump administration. We also delved into the kind of future they imagine for their families and the specific barriers they say are getting in the way.

The goal of this research is to offer insights for policymakers, journalists, advocates, and others seeking to understand Black communities' experiences, values, and priorities at this time.

This report provides findings from a statewide survey among n = 528 Black adults ages 18 and older in Pennsylvania. The survey was conducted May 27 through June 17, 2025. Ipsos administered the survey using a combination of their probability-based KnowledgePanel and off-panel, opt-in sample. The data are weighted to reflect a representative sample of Black adults in Pennsylvania. See the next page for a demographic profile of survey respondents.

This survey is part of a larger project that surveys Black adults in a total of ten states.

Here is the demographic composition of the survey respondents.

	Weighted %	Unweighted N
Total	100%	528
Black or African American	100%	528
2+ races	8%	32
Hispanic / Latina/o/x	9%	43
Women	54%	296
Men	46%	224
Non-binary / transgender	1%	7
Prefer to self-describe	0%	0
Prefer not to say	2%	6
18 to 29	23%	116
30 to 44	28%	142
45 to 64	33%	180
65+	16%	90

	Weighted %	Unweighted N
HS or less	46%	217
Some college	31%	178
College +	24%	133
Less than $25K	22%	177
$25K to $50K	18%	149
$50K to $75K	21%	82
$75K+	39%	120
Democrats	66%	348
Independents	25%	124
Republicans	9%	56
Metro	95%	506
Non-metro	5%	18
Not available	0%	4

Key findings.

Here are 10 key findings.

1

Data suggest about half of Black adults in Pennsylvania are struggling with economic insecurity.

Fifty-four percent say they have less than $500 in savings, and 46% say they don't have enough money to pay for basic needs like food and housing. Economic stress is a near daily reality—60% report worrying about their financial situation every day or several times a week.

The burden is heavier for women of reproductive age. More than half (56%) of women ages 18 to 44 can't afford basic needs right now and 69% feel financial stress every day or several times a week.

2

There's a lot of worry.

Majorities of respondents worry at least once a week about the state of our country and various aspects of their families' physical and financial wellbeing.

Seven in ten (72%) say they worry "every day" about at least one of these issues.

How often do you worry about...

RANDOMIZE

3

Black adults expect things to get a lot worse under the Trump administration.

Respondents expect things to get worse on some of the issues they already worry about most—such as economic security. They also think racial injustice, threats to democracy, and access to reproductive care will worsen over the next four years.

Pessimism crosses gender, age, and other demographic lines. That said, older adults and younger women are most likely to anticipate harmful outcomes of the Trump administration.

See next page.

EXPECTATIONS FOR THE NEXT FOUR YEARS UNDER THE TRUMP ADMINISTRATION

Do you think...

Most of these questions had a third response option, such as "it won't change." (See pages 30 to 34 for full results).

4 Medicaid cuts may disproportionately impact Black adults.

Two-thirds of respondents (67%) say they or a family member has had Medicaid coverage at some point in their lives. For many Black adults in Pennsylvania, it's a vital resource. Nearly all who've received Medicaid (95%) say it's been important to them or their families, including 81% who say it's been "very important." Yet access remains a challenge for some—25% report having had trouble finding a provider who accepts Medicaid.

Respondents who have enrolled in Medicaid are more likely than others to be under financial pressure right now: 55% say they don't have enough money to cover basic needs like food and housing (vs. 46% overall).

5

There's a gap between the desire to have children and the intention to do so.

More than half of respondents ages 18 to 44 (55%) say, ideally, they'd want (more) kids in the future. However, just 31% plan to do so.

We explored what might be holding back those who want kids. Topping the list is “being able to take care of myself or my family as it is now.” Majorities also cite several economic roadblocks as well as “the state of our country right now” and their mental health.

TOP DECISION FACTORS FOR WHETHER OR NOT TO HAVE A CHILD

- Being able to take care of myself or my family as it is now (70% of 18- to 44-year-olds say this is part of their thinking about whether or not to have a child)
- Housing prices (69%)
- Food prices (68%)
- The state of our country right now (67%)
- How much money I or my partner makes (67%)
- Health care prices (66%)
- The state of my mental health (60%)
- Childcare prices (59%)
- Racism (57%)

6

Systemic racism is a barrier to health, stability, and raising healthy families.

Black adults in Pennsylvania view systemic racism as a force shaping daily life and access to opportunity.

Nearly six in ten (58%) say society's systems are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people (vs. 29% who say systems are set up for equality).

More than half of respondents (53%) report exposure to environmental toxins, such as unsafe water and air, at some point in their lives.

Addressing systemic racism is seen as essential for helping Black families thrive. A large majority of respondents (84%) say dismantling systemic racism is extremely or very important to building a future where Black families are healthy, safe, free, and financially secure.

7

Women of reproductive age face significant barriers to reproductive justice.

Throughout the data, we find that women ages 18 to 44 have the least security, freedom, and opportunity to raise healthy children if they choose. Men also face barriers, but not as many or to the same degree.

The next page summarizes these obstacles. All percentages reflect Black women respondents ages 18 to 44.

Majorities recognize an adultification (75%) and sexualization (68%) of Black girls in society
 77% say it's very important for Black women to be visible in media and culture
 61% say representation affects how they are treated
 61% expect Black people to lose positions of power during the next four years

61% think they'll feel less safe, secure, and free under President Trump

In the next four years, majorities think:

- We'll lose our democracy (74%)
- Racial discrimination will increase (73%)
- Black women will lose rights (65%)
- It'll be harder for Black people to stand up for their civil rights (63%)
- Fewer students will learn Black history (59%)

58% say systems in US are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people

More than half (56%) don't have enough money to pay for basic needs like food and housing

61% have less than $500 in savings

79% worry about their financial situation at least once a week

72% expect the cost of living to increase in the next four years and they expect their own income will go down (45%) or stay stagnant (30%)

56% want (more) children, but just 28% plan to have them

Top decision factors in whether to have a child:

- Being able to care for self / family as is (76%)
- Salary / wages (73%)
- Housing prices (72%)
- Food prices (67%)
- Childcare prices (67%)
- Health care prices (64%)

71% worry at least once a week about their mental health
 71% think it'll get harder to get quality repro care under the Trump administration
 50% say their risk of death in pregnancy is a decision factor for having kids
 45% say possible criminalization is a decision factor for having kids
 41% have relied on Medicaid at some point
 32% have felt a health care provider(s) didn't take their concerns seriously
 54% have experienced unhealthy water, air, or environmental toxins

8

Black adults see many policy solutions that could help them thrive.

When asked what it would take for Black families to thrive, respondents point to a wide range of policy priorities—but especially access to food and water, economic concerns, and dismantling systemic barriers.

TOP POLICY NEEDS

Let's say we wanted to create a world where Black people are free to raise healthy children, if they choose. In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

- Making sure everyone has access to clean water (69% extremely important)
- Improving access to healthy and affordable food options (65%)
- Increasing job opportunities that pay a livable wage (65%)
- Dismantling systemic racism (65%)
- Getting rid of racial disparities in health care (64%)
- Increasing affordable housing (62%)
- Improving access to affordable higher education (62%)
- Having equal pay in the workplace (61%)
- Having equal opportunities to move up in the workplace (61%)
- Increasing support for women who face intimate partner violence / sexual violence (61%)
- Protecting the right to vote in future elections, without barriers (61%)
- Improving access to quality, affordable health care (60%)
- Improving access to quality public schools (59%)
- Improving access to affordable mental health care (59%)

9

Large majorities support abortion rights, access, and personal decisions.

Majorities across demographic groups support abortion rights and access, including those who attend religious services regularly.

A third (35%) of respondents ages 18 to 29 say they know someone who has had an abortion in the past year or two.

78%

Say abortion should be legal in all or most cases

Including 71% of those who attend religious services regularly

79%

Say the person(s) involved should decide when and how someone can get abortion care

74%

83%

Agree: Each woman should have the right to make her own decision on abortion, even if I may disagree with her decision

79%

82%

Agree: When it comes to abortion, I trust Black women to make the personal decision that's best for themselves

79%

10

Representation of Black women matters.

Nine in ten (92%) respondents say it's important that Black women are visible and positively portrayed in our culture and media. Why does it matter? For many reasons, but particularly because representation shapes how Black people are treated.

Why does having Black women voices in culture and media matter to you?

Select any that apply.

RANDOMIZE UP TO DOESN'T MATTER

Detailed findings.

SECTIONS

- 21 Daily economic and emotional pressures
- 27 Outlook on life during the second Trump term
- 40 Needs and aspirations for healthy families
- 52 Views on reproductive health policies
- 61 Respect, representation, and changing norms

Daily economic and emotional pressures

voice
IN OUR OWN

Many respondents are struggling with little to no economic security.

Close to half (46%) say they don't have enough money to cover basic needs, and 54% have less than $500 available for an emergency expense.

Do you have enough money to pay for all of your bills and basic needs, like food and housing?

How much money do you have set aside that could be used for an emergency?

Women of reproductive age and those without a four-year degree are the most likely to be financially insecure.

There are many worries on people's minds—including the state of the country.

Majorities worry at least once a week about the state of our country and their families' financial and physical wellbeing.

How often do you worry about...

RANDOMIZE

Women are more likely than men to face worries about family, health, and the state of the country.

See at right and the next page.

How often do you worry about...

RANDOMIZE

% At least once a week

Younger respondents, particularly women, are more likely than their counterparts to worry about climate change, their mental health, and affording health care.

Outlook on life during the second Trump term

voice
IN OUR OWN

Six months into the Trump administration, seven in ten respondents (70%) say the country is on the wrong track.

Majorities across demographic groups say the country is on the wrong track, with women and older respondents most likely to express this view.

Would you say things in the country are:

Most respondents (71%) feel negatively about Trump winning the election.

Just one in five (21%) respondents express a positive sentiment about the election outcome.

How do you feel about Donald Trump winning the election?

RANDOMIZE UP TO NONE

More than half (57%) expect Trump's policies to negatively affect Black people.

Just one in seven respondents (14%) think Trump's policies will positively affect Black people, including just 17% of Black men.

Women and older men are most likely to foresee singularly negative effects on Black communities.

About six in ten men ages 18 to 44 think Trump's policies will have positive effects (19%), both negative and positive effects (27%), or will not affect Black people (12%).

In general, do you think President Trump's policies will:
ROTATE FIRST TWO

Six in ten (62%) expect to feel less safe, secure, and free under a Trump administration.

Older adults (ages 45+) are more likely than younger adults to expect greater insecurity under President Trump (70% v. 55%).

About half of men ages 18 to 44 think they'll feel less security (47%) under President Trump, with the rest thinking they'll feel more security (26%) or won't feel a difference (27%).

Think about the next four years under President Trump. Do you think you will feel:

ROTATE FIRST TWO

Most (76%) expect the cost of living to rise over the next four years, without an increase in their own incomes.

In fact, four in ten (41%) expect their incomes to go down during the next four years.

In the next four years under President Trump, do you think:
RANDOMIZE PAIRS AND ROTATE WITHIN PAIR

Majorities also foresee backward trends across health care, civil rights, and democracy.

In the next four years under President Trump, do you think:

RANDOMIZE PAIRS AND ROTATE ITEMS WITHIN PAIR

Black adults think many people, including themselves, will lose rights under President Trump.

They see men and white people as likely to keep or gain rights under President Trump.

Under President Trump, do you think these people will gain or lose rights?

Seven in ten (72%) say they'd want their elected officials to push back against President Trump.

In general, do you want your elected officials in Congress to:

ROTATE

Many Black families in Pennsylvania see Medicaid as a vital resource.

The program isn't perfect—one in four (25%) say they or a loved one has had trouble finding a provider who accepts Medicaid.

67%

Say they or a family member has had Medicaid coverage at some point in their lives (40% self; 40% family member)

95%

Of those with a connection to Medicaid say the program has been important to them or their loved ones—81% say it has been “very important”

Among n = 376 respondents who say they or a family member has had Medicaid

25%

Say they or a family member has had trouble finding a health care provider that takes Medicaid

Among n = 376 respondents who say they or a family member has had Medicaid

Three in ten (30%) say they've worried about themselves or a family member being deported unlawfully.

Close to half (47%) of respondents ages 18 to 29 say they've worried about deportation.

As you may know, the Trump administration is deporting undocumented immigrants. Have you worried that you or a family member might be deported unlawfully?

30%

Yes, I've worried about this

69%

No, I haven't worried about this

A majority (80%) oppose Trump's pardons of people convicted of January 6th crimes.

As you may know, President Trump pardoned people convicted of crimes related to the Capitol riot on January 6th.
Do you support or oppose Trump's pardons?

Most (80%) don't think President Trump would handle Black-led protests fairly.

Do you think President Trump would handle
Black-led protests fairly?

Needs and aspirations for healthy families

voice
IN OUR OWN

Do Black adults in Pennsylvania have the security, safety, and freedom required to raise healthy families if they choose?

Fewer than half say yes (43%).

Imagine this. You have enough money to pay bills, with plenty left over. You and your family are able to be physically and mentally healthy. You feel safe in your community. You have the freedom to raise healthy families, if you choose to. You feel safe, secure, and free wherever you go.

Do you have a life like this now?

Just three in ten (31%) are convinced their children will have a life like this.

Respondents aren't necessarily pessimistic, however. A plurality (38%) are not sure.

Do you think your children will have a life like this?
IF NO KIDS: If you were to have children, do you think they'd have a life like this?

Women are -13 pts less likely than men to feel financially secure, safe, and free.

There's a big gap between wanting children and planning to have them.

In an ideal world, 55% of respondents of reproductive age (18 to 44) say they'd want children in the future. But just 31% plan to have them.

In an ideal world, would you want to have [any / any more] children in the future?
Do you plan to have [any / any more] children in the future?

Among $n = 258$ respondents ages 18 to 44

Data suggest there are many barriers holding back people who want kids.

At the top of the list is simply “being able to care for myself or my family as it is now.” Economic barriers and “the state of our country right now” are also considerations for a majority of respondents of reproductive age.

Are any of these things part of your thinking about whether or not to have a child?

RANDOMIZE | Among $n = 258$ respondents ages 18 to 44

% Yes, part of my thinking

% Yes, part of my thinking
Ages 18 to 44

Data show women balancing a broader set of considerations than men, including financial concerns, conditions emerging from abortion bans, and the state of their mental health.

18- to 29-year-olds are more likely than their counterparts to be weighing several factors. More than half say the risk of death if they or a loved one gets pregnant has been a part of their decision-making on having children.

	Women	Men	18 to 29	30 to 44
Being able to care for myself or my family as it is now	76%	65%	71%	70%
Housing prices	72%	67%	74%	65%
Food prices	67%	70%	72%	66%
The state of our country right now	71%	63%	70%	65%
How much money I or my partner makes	73%	60%	69%	66%
Health care prices	64%	69%	76%	58%
The state of my mental health	65%	55%	67%	54%
Childcare prices	67%	52%	53%	65%
Racism	58%	55%	64%	52%
Climate change / the environment	54%	47%	59%	44%
Being able to get health care if you had a miscarriage	52%	44%	53%	45%
The risk of death if I or my loved one gets pregnant	50%	46%	57%	41%
Being charged with a crime for having a miscarriage or being suspected of ending a pregnancy	45%	33%	49%	33%
Abortion bans	45%	34%	54%	28%

What would it take to create a world where Black families are healthy, safe, free, and financially secure?

We asked respondents to imagine a world where Black people are safe, secure, and have the freedom to raise healthy children, if they choose (see text at right).

We then asked how important various policies are to achieving a world like this.

Respondents rate nearly every policy area as important to building a world where Black families thrive. See next page.

Presented to respondents

Imagine this. You have enough money to pay bills, with plenty left over. You and your family are able to be physically and mentally healthy. You feel safe in your community. You have the freedom to raise healthy families, if you choose to. You feel safe, secure, and free wherever you go...

Let's say we wanted to create a world like this. We want a world where Black people are free to raise healthy children, if they choose. In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

See next page....

In your opinion, how important is each of these things to creating a world like this?

Access to food and water, economic opportunity, and a more equitable society are among the most important.

A majority of respondents (58%) say systems in the US—that are critical for raising healthy families—are set up to give white people more opportunities than Black people.

Think about the systems in our society, such as school systems, health care, housing, food, banking, and the government.

In general, do you think these systems are set up to:

ROTATE

Many have experienced the results of these systems, such as a lack of clean water and air.

More than half (53%) have had at least one experience related to unhealthy water, air, or environmental toxins.

Have you ever:

% Yes

RANDOMIZE

Additionally, one in three (33%) say they've felt discrimination in the doctor's office.

Have you ever felt that a health care provider did not listen to you or take your concerns seriously because of your race?

33%

Yes

31% Women
35% Men

65%

No

Views on reproductive health policies

voice
IN OUR OWN

Roughly three-quarters (78%) say abortion should be legal in all or most cases.

Which comes closest to your view.
Abortion should be:

78%

Legal in all or most cases

36% All cases
41% Most cases

20%

Illegal in all or most cases

6% All cases
15% Most cases

Majorities across every demographic group think abortion should be legal in all or most cases — including those who attend religious services regularly.

Which comes closest to your view:
Abortion should be legal in all cases, legal in most cases, illegal in most cases, illegal in all cases

Black adults in Pennsylvania prefer that decisions about abortion rest in the hands of the people involved.

Just seven percent think state lawmakers should be making these decisions.

In your view, who should make decisions about when and how someone can get abortion care in your state? Select any that apply:

RANDOMIZE

Large majorities want people making their own decisions and agree that health insurance should cover the range of reproductive care.

83%

Agree: Each woman should have the right to make her own decision on abortion, even if I may disagree with her decision.

63% Strongly agree
20% Somewhat agree

85% Women
82% Men

81% 18 to 44
85% 45+

82%

Agree: When it comes to abortion, I trust Black women to make the personal decision that's best for themselves.

56% Strongly agree
26% Somewhat agree

86% Women
79% Men

81% 18 to 44
83% 45+

84%

Agree: Whether she has private or government funded health coverage, every woman should have coverage for the full range of pregnancy-related care, including prenatal care and abortion.

58% Strongly agree
26% Somewhat agree

86% Women
83% Men

82% 18 to 44
86% 45+

One in four (24%) say they know someone who has recently had an abortion.

A third (35%) of respondents ages 18 to 29 say they know someone who has had an abortion in the past year or two.

Do you know anyone who has had an abortion in the past year or two?

RANDOMIZE

Respondents are much more likely to vote for candidates who support abortion access than those who oppose it.

Are you more likely to vote for a candidate for state legislature who _____ access to abortion:
ROTATE SUPPORTS / IS AGAINST

Supports No difference / REF Is against

A large majority (87%) supports comprehensive sex education in high school.

Do you support or oppose comprehensive sex ed in high school that covers topics such as abstinence, birth control, abortion, preventing HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases, different sexual orientations, gender identity, sexual violence, consent, and healthy relationships?

87%

Support

11%

Oppose

81% Attends rel.
services monthly+

Eight in ten (79%) agree that health care providers should create space for conversations about sexuality, including sexual pleasure.

Do you agree or disagree: Our health care providers should create space for education and non-judgmental conversations about sexuality, gender-affirming care, and sexual expression, including how we can experience pleasure.

79%

Agree

19%

Disagree

76% Attends rel.
services monthly+

Respect, representation, and changing norms

voice
IN OUR OWN

Six in ten recognize an adultification (63%) and sexualization (60%) of Black girls in our society.

Women are more likely than men to recognize these messages.

In a society that centers white people, there can be many false messages about Black people.

Do you think our society _____?

% Yes
ROTATE

63%

Sees Black girls as more adult-like and less innocent than white girls

70% Women
57% Men

63% 18 to 44
63% 45+

60%

Assumes more Black girls are sexually active than white girls

67% Women
52% Men

57% 18 to 44
63% 45+

Two-thirds (65%) of adults ages 18 to 29 say they were told growing up that they look older for their age.

Women ages 18 to 44 are more likely than men their age to report being told they look old for their age during childhood.

When you were growing up, how often were you told that you look older for your age?

Nearly all (92%) say it's important for Black women to be visible and positively portrayed in media.

How important is it that Black women are visible and positively portrayed in our culture and media (in entertainment, news, talk shows, etc.)?

Why is representation important?

Many reasons – but especially because it shapes how people are treated.

Why does having Black women voices in culture and media matter to you?
Select any that apply.
RANDOMIZE UP TO DOESN'T MATTER

voice

IN OUR OWN

PERRY
UNDEM